THE CHILDREN'S VILLAGE, HARLEM DOWLING, AND BRIDGE BUILDERS FEED OVER 1500 FAMILIES THANKS TO GENEROUS DONORS AND VOLUNTEERS

New York, NY – This week, The Children's Village, along with our partners at Bridge Builders and Harlem Dowling, gave away over 1500 Thanksgiving turkeys and fixings to the city's most vulnerable families this Thanksgiving.

Food was donated, packaged, and distributed by generous donors and volunteers, including the New York Giants, Whole Foods Market, The Rosemark Group, DYCD Assistant Commissioner Darryl Rattray, Morgan Stanley, New York Life, United Water, RCA Asphalt, and our Leadership Council.

The Rosemark Group, with the help of Whole Foods, the CV Leadership Council, and NY Giants Jameel McClain, Rueben Randle, Landon Collins, and Chykie Brown gave away 500 turkeys at CV's Polo Grounds Community Center.

Founded in 1851, The Children's Village works in partnership with families to help children develop the skills and positive attitude needed to succeed as healthy contributing adults. Each year, CV serves approximately 10,000 of New York's most at-risk children and their families. Programs include short-term residential programs, shelters, street outreach, foster and adoptive homes, a community center in Harlem, programs for youth involved with the juvenile justice system, and a host of family support services.
